The question of having better police pro tection in the Fourth ward has been frequently agitated, but the talk has never had any appreciable effect on the mayor or city council, and every now and then depredations are committed in the most thickly populated parts of the city, and no pre-tense is ever made of capturing the offenders. Last Thorsday night a man named Carll, who lives at 926 Eighth avenue, was held up and robbed at the cor-ner of Fourth avenue and Tenth street, while on his way home. His assailants hid behind the trees on Fourth avenue and pounced upon him just after he had turned the corner. There was a moon, but it was hidden by clouds, and frequently the elec-tric light at the corner was out. # BEE NEWS FROM COUNCIL BLUFFS

How a Native of New Jersey Came Near Losing His Money.

CONFIDENCE MEN AND THEIR WILES

Uses to Which a Simple Padlock Can Be Put; or How the Cuwary Are Made the Victims of Sharpers.

William Graber is the name of a young man who came into the city yesterday morning from New Jersey on his way to California. He had been wrestling hand to hand with the mosquitoes that do business in his native state, and thought he was prepared to tackle almost anything. But he ran up against a confidence trick of the simplest kind that came near giving him $15 worth of experience in the ways of the wild and woolly west.

While loading about the transfer vesterday noon he was approached by a stranger and asked to go and get a glass of beer. He accepted the invitation and started off with the stranger in the direction of the nearest saloon. On the way they met a man who appeared to be intoxicated and the stranger pulled out a parlock, which he said he had just picked up in the street, and suggested that they get the drunken man to bet that it couldn't be opened in ten seconds. The rest of the occurrence goes without telling. Garber finally put up $45 in the hands of his friend as stakenolder, but just at this point a fourth party appeared and exhibited a star as big as a dish pan, announced that he was a detective, and put, all three of them under arrest. He pointed out the Rock Island round house as the city jail and they started off in that direction. After a time it dawned upon Graber that he had been worked and he began making a great deal of noise, demanding that his money be returned. The people in that vi-cinity heard him and notified Officer Quinn, who put chase. Before Quinn caught up with them the confidence man who had Graber's money handed it back and soon st himself with his companion among the freight cars.

Quinn put Graber and the alleged detective under arrest and took them to the police station in the patrol wagon. The detective gave his name as J. H. Stults and claimed to be a laborer living at South Omaha, but he ould not tell the name of the mayor nor chief f police there. He was slated with obtaining money under false pretences, but as he had not had Graber's money in his posses-sion there is considerable doubt as to the charge being made to stick. The chances are that the only thing that can be proved against him is that of impersonating an officer. Graber says he will stay here six months, if necessary, for the purpose of prosecuting, but for fear that his resolution might weaken Judge McGee ordered that his ticket for California and his money be taken away from him until after the hearing in order to insure his stay-

The other two members of the gang have lisappeared, but the officers announce their hopes of capturing them. Many other con-fidence men have been caught at the trans-fer at different times, but it is very seldom that one has been convicted, and the opera-tions are carried on without much molesta-It is hoped that an example may be made of the guilty parties in the present case.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

Society Events that Have Helped to Make Time Pass Pleasantly.

The Whist club of Denison paid a visit to this city Friday evening and played a game of auplicate whist at the residence of J. J. During the evening an ele-gant supper was served by the wives of the members of the Bluffs club. The following is the way the game stood at the close, the Council Bluffs players being the first at each table in the following list: O. P. Wickham and I. F. Hendricks against W. W. Cushman and B. Y. Nicholson, three points in favor of Denison; J. C. Waterman and J. M. Barstow, against M. J. McNertny and J. H. Gabie, sixteen in favor of Denison; J. J. Shea and T. C. Dawson against Frank Odell and D. L. Boynton, thirty for Council Bluffs; W. J. Lauterwasser and T. E. Casady against T. J. Huffman and George Richard-son, five for Council Bluffs; I. M. Treynor and W. E. Aitchison against W. R. Barber and W. J. Schriver, tie.

Mr. Woodworth Allen and Miss Helen Bowman were married last Wednesday afternoon at the Congregational parsonage in Lincoln, Neb., Rev. L. S. Gregory officiat-ing. The wedging was a complete surprise to all of the friends of the parties, not even the relatives knowing that anything unusual was in the wind until they were informed that the ceremony had already been per-formed. The groom is connected with the Nebraska Fuel company, and both he and the bride are popular members of the social circles of Council Bluffs and Omaha. They

RATTLESNAKES TOOK A HAND. They Save Two Texas Desperadoes the

Trouble of Killing Each Other. We were in camp on the banks of the Brazos river of Texas for the night. At supper time a dispute arose between two men, and before anyone had looked upon it as a serious matter they were facing each other with knives in their hands, says a writer in the New York Sun. The disputants were border men. The lie had been given, and that meant fight. It was simply how they should fighthow to give the smaller man an equal chance.

"Look here," said Big Carter, who had charge of the outfit, "thar's an old adobe, and we'll hang a blanket at the door. We'll turn you both loose in thar, and when I fire my revolver the fun kin begin."

Nobody said no. He would have been looked upon as chicken hearted. The disputants readily agreed. Had one of them declined he would have been branded a coward. The frontier has its laws and its customs. Both men stripped to the waist, and each was armed with a keen bowie knife. There were no threats. no boasting. Each pulled off his shoes, and Jim, the half-breed, was the first man to pass in after the blanket had been hung up. That blanket made it midnight darkness inside. Frank, as we called him, followed within ten sec-

"Now, boys," said Big Carter, as he stood at the door, "take opposite sides. Now, git ready. Now, hunt fur each other

At the last word he fired his revolver in the air, and the whole crowd stood in a half circle before the door. Five minutes passed and there was no sound. Some one whispered that they were circling around the wall in the darkness. Another five minutes, but no clash of steel, no vengeful cry, no shriek of pain and fury as one of the murderous knives drank blood.

"Come, boys, don't be afraid of each other!" cried Big Carter in his impatience, and almost every individual murmured his applause. Five minutes more and still no sound. The scars which those men had exhibited in the firelight were proofs of their

The hut was not a large one. One should have found the other in the first five minutes. "Boys, they are afraid of each other!" shouted Big Carter when the watch showed they had been inside twenty minutes. "I reckon we'd jest better have them one and—"

"Sh!" interrupted a man who had crept close to the door. "Ah listen!

"Rattlesnakes, by jingo!" replied Car-

"And a dozen of 'em!" shouted two or three others in chorus. We got a pole and removed the blanket. Then we tied a torch to the pole and thrust it into the hut. Both men were lying on the floor, their knives clutched in their hands. Between them, around them, crawling over them, were a dozen or, more monster rattlesnakes. Both had been bitten over and over again before their knives had crossed. Jim had entered first and probably felt the deadly fangs first. It was a duel to the death, and he had not cried out! Frank had followed to be struck in the same way, but he, too, had maintained silence. They were past all help when we pulled them out. Each had been bitten three or four times. Even the hands which held the bright-bladed knives had been struck as the men sank down in their tracks. A cry, a rush outdoors, would have saved both, but were

SHE WILL INHERIT A TITLE.

Daughter of Lord Wolseley, Literary Ama teur, Philanthropist and Hunter.

Hon. Frances Wolseley is the only child and heiress of the famous British general, Lord Wolseley, and before he would consent to accept a peerage he stipulated the title should descend tohis daughter ard her descendants-a favor seldom granted to the English nobility, though there are a great number of Scotch and drish peerages which descend in the female line. Miss Wolseley is now living with her parents in the picturesque old Kilmainham hospital, Dublin. She is a beautiful girl and strongly resembles her illustrious father. Both she and her mother are intensely busy women and interested in literature and art as well as society. Miss Wolseley's favorite amusement, according to the New York Press, is hunting, andrather an unusual taste for a girl—she has collected book plates since the time when she was 10 years old. Her choicest specimens, which include some very beautiful English plates and many French, German and Italian specimens, are kept by her in a Sharatan cabinet in the pretty little boudoir which her mother has given over to her. But her most valued treasure is just a scrap of paper; on this bit is written in a straight, upright hand: "Kartoum all right. 14, 12, 84. C. E. G rd n."

Gordon is Miss Wolseley's great hero and soldier saint, as he is her father's. Of late Miss Wolseley has been throw-ing herself with great ardor into philanthropic works; she has become honorable secretary of the Soldiers and Sailors Families association and devotes much time every day to the considerable amount of correspondence entailed. She s a special favorite with Queen Victoria, who always enjoys a visit from her young friend each time that the general crosses the Irish channel with his pretty daugh-

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Secretary Morton's Official Ax Makes a Record for the Cleavers.

NINETEEN HEADS AT ONE FELL SWOOP

Fair Maidens Whose Bright Eyes Straine d in Search of the Tricky Trichinge Will Be Out of Work After Wednesday.

Dr. E. L. Siggins, chief microscopist at the South Omaha station received a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Morton today to dispense with the services of the following ladies, now employed in his office: Orfa Thomas, Nellie Arnold, Allice Alberry, Kate Ferrill, Lou Gibson, Ida Gilmore, Anna Gurske, Ella Hudson, Viola Johnson, Adalaide Kettler, Maggie Ward, Lizzie Spencer, Elia Seward, Flora E. Schamel, Dora Sawhill, Jessie Savage, Jenette Ringer, Lizzie Palmeter and Etta Thompson. In all nineteen heads dropped into the basket. It is but due to these ladies, how-ever, to state that they have performed their work satisfactoring and have proven them-selves competent. When asked if any new appointments had been made Dr. Siggins said that there had not so far as he knew. He was of the opinion that there would not be any made for the present as his force, less the nineteen was single large enough to less the nineteen, was amply large enough to do the work. The ladies named will conclude their services on next Wednesday. This will reduce the force to thirty-five.

Viaduct and Street Repairs.

Mayor Walker and the committee or viaduets from the city council, accompanied by Contractor Howland, viewed the repairs that are to be made on the Q street viaduet yesterday. Mr. Howland said he would make the repairs for $50, and his offer was accepted. He will therefore begin the work at once, and in a few days the structure will again be passable. As it now is it is very inconvenient for persons who live on the west side, for the mud is so deep underneath the viaduct that a team can barely pull an npty wagon, to say nothing of a load.

While the councilmen were sizing up the viaduct repairs their attention was called to the muddy condition of Twenty-seventh street, and it is promised now that that thoroughfare will also be cleaned. It cer-tamly needs it. In fact a stronger could never tell that the street had been paved, surface mud is about eight inches deep, the dirt having washed down from the banks above.

Another Hammond Clerk Dead The funeral ofC. O. Young took place yesterday afternoon, interment being at Forest Lawn cemetery. Mr. Young was a man who had a wide acquaintance, especially in railroad circles, as he was for a number of years connected with the freight depart-ment of the B. & M. in Omaha. He was highly respected by all who knew him and was a thorough business man. For the last two years he was employed in this city as a clerk at Hammond's. He leaves a wife and two children. His home was at No. 401 North Fifteenth street, Omaha. His demise. will be mourned by many in this city.

Said Catarrh Was the American National Disease.

It Is the Cause of More Deaths Than Any Other Disease-What Is Said of It by Eminent Specialists-Evidence That Proves the Superiority of the Copeland and Shepard Treatment.

On the occasion of his last visit to America the late Sir Morell Massanzie was asked his opinion of the climate of America and its a-tion on diseases of the thront and lungs. He opinion of the climate of America and its antion on diseases of the throat and lungs. He replied:

"In your American climate catarrh is unquestionably the cause of more deaths than any other disease. At first it is as a rule a little thing, morely a cold in the head. But in a climate like this, one cold is not entirely cured before another follows. A succession of colds constitutes chronic catarrh. A strong and heatthy constitution will suffer only inconvenience from catarrh, but all others run a great risk of what may follow. The health is broken, the constitution weakened, and, although the extern litself may not be the actual cause of doath, stl., ind rectly, by so weakening the system that it is unable to resist the attack of other diseases, it is."

Carl Selle, M. D., of Philadelphia, another famous nose and throat specialist, estimates that W per cent of the people in America are afflicted with catarrh.

David inglis, M. D., professor of mental and nervous diseases. Detroit College of Medicine, says: "It has seemed to me that the profession is only beginning to wake up to the widespread relation of intranasal disorders to functional disturbances of the nervous system. I have had reason to attribute to masal trouble not only asthma, courts, various gastric disturbances, but melancholia, chore and epilepsy."

PEGASUS IN BERLIN.

An Equine Aeronaut Breaks the World's Record. The latest novelty launched on the circus going public of Berlin is designated on the program of the famous Corty-Athol circus as "Osman Pasha, the great and only equine aeronaut of the nineteenth century." Osman Pasha is described by the New York Press as a proud black stallion with fine head and symmetrical proportions.

The trainers found little difficulty at first in inducing the stallion, who was docile, to step in the car of the balloon, and in order to prevent accidents two stout straps connected his bit with heavy iron rings fastened to the sides of the car. After his first aerial trip, however, he strenuously objected to leave terra firma, and it required several months of patient and careful coaxing before Osman could perform his feat gracefully And even now, after many trials, he exhibits a certain lack of confidence. When Osman receives his com mand to step into the balloon conveyance he acts like a woman on the point of taking a cable car-he wants to be sure that the thing does not fly away be fore he is comfortably installed. During the ascension he behaves phlegmatically and stands perfectly still, notwithstand ing the manipulations of his keepers be low, who are constantly pulling on the ropes attached to the car, swinging it violently back and forth, so that scream of terror escape the ladies, who fear that the poor beast may tumble down at any moment. The only symptoms of fear the horse evinces occur during the pyrotechnical finale. From the moment the attendant approaches with his flaming torch with which he kindles the fire works the stallion begins to stamp and snort furiously. During this part of the performance his flery eyes and pricked ears denote his interest, and when he is finally released there is a sudden dash for the stables under the uproarious applause of the appreciative multitude.

Destruction of the Buffals,

Harper's Magazine: In 1876 Fort Benton alone sent 80,000 buffalo hides to market. In 1883 two car leads shipped from Dickinson, N. D. In 1884 Fort Benton sent none at all. In 1879 a little band of the animals were known to be grazing near Fort Totten, on Devil Lake, N. D., and it is believed that these animals furnished the two car loads which came eastward to St. Paul from Dickinson in 1883.

This was the last year of the buffalo-1883. A herd, numbering perhaps 80,000, crossed the Yellowstone river in that year and went north toward the British line. "They never came back," is the pitiful refrain which one hears from the Indians along the burder from Winnipeg in Manitoba to St. Macy's lakes in Alberta.

No, they never came back. While riding with the officers of the Canadian mounted police through Alberta, they told me the story of this last year of the buffalo, but it was never told twice alike by any two men, for a strange mystery seems to hang over the closing scene of the great crime which annihilated the mighty herds.

Years ago catarra fastened itself in my system, and my sick headaches were to a onizing to describe. I had them two of three days out of every week. My stomach was sore and painful, often gasenus—and food disjusted me. As soon as Dr. Shepard fairly began with me relief came. I felt, in a few weeks, more comfort than I had had for sev-eral years. My head got all right, and for seven weeks I felt no main whatever My stomach is all right, and I am cured. I feel just this way—that I cannot praise the work of Dr. Shepard enough for what he has done
